

Contribution Information for The New York Preservation Archive Project

- The New York Preservation Archive Project is a not-for-profit organization founded in 1993 in response to the loss of the evidential history of New York's historic preservation movement.
- The New York Preservation Archive Project documents, conducts oral histories, assists in the preservation of archives, and educates the public about the existence of archives and their incomparable value.
- The New York Preservation Archive Project aims to celebrate neglected narratives of New York historic preservation, as well as the canon, through the archives that hold these stories.
