New York, New York: Lesson for Legislation, 11:00 AM

This strong, sixty minute visual argument for additional state funds to support New York City's need for increased school and teaching facilities was first presented February 23 on our New York, New York program. On the theory that a good lesson should be learned well, and in response to numerous requests from parents and educators, WABC-TV is rebroadcasting its "Lesson for Legislation," produced in cooperation with the New York City Board of Education.

In an informal interview at the White House, President Lyndon B. Johnson will discuss the principal achievements of his administration and the major domestic and world problems that loom ahead. Participating in the interview are CBS News Correspondent Eric Sevareid and his two colleagues from ABC and NBC, William H. Lawrence and David Brinkley. Tonight's interview continues a tradition established by the late President Kennedy.

No. 2 Columbus Circle, 3:30 PM

Millionaire Huntington Hartford's impressive and "different" Gallery of Modern Art at No. 2 Columbus Circle has been the subject of heated discussion among architects who question its design and among art critics who question its collection. Today WABC-TV takes you inside for a special hour-long color television tour with Mr. Hartford, and Salvador Dali, noted surrealist painter, as your program guides.
