Bob:

I just received this invite to a symposium organized by the Museum of Arts and Design next weekend. Im'not attending, but I thhink it worth noting that it has a list of very prominent avant-garde architects and designers in lots of disciplines. These people are really at the cutting edge of design, like Zaha Hadid, Liz Diller, Aaron Betsky, and Hani Rashid. They are exactly the kind of voices who need to speak out against designation of this pathetic building. I think you should call Laurie Beckelman up and get her to strongarm every invitee on this list to write a letter about it. The design community needs to speak up and stop the madness put for by the Taliban (HDC/Lanmarks West).

That my 2 cents- sorry, but I'm still pissed about Bush, and people who are very effective about getting their message out there, drowning out those with something intelligent to say...

See you next week-

Richard
